

ELECTIONS

Elections and Voting Records

The North Carolina General Assembly made the State Board of Elections an independent agency in 1974. The five members of the board are appointed by the governor for a term of four years. The board recommends any necessary or advisable changes in the administration of primaries and general elections to the governor and the General Assembly.

Voter registration is a function of the county Boards of Elections, which operate under guidelines set out in the General Statutes of North Carolina. Each county has its own board and citizens are registered based on the county in which they reside.

Periodically, purges of voter registration files are conducted in accordance with law to remove voters who have not exercised their right to vote during a specified period of time. G.S. 163-69 states that “Any voter who neither voted in the first or the second of the two most recent consecutive presidential elections, and who failed to vote in any other election conducted in the period between the two presidential elections shall be purged.” Removal is not, however, automatic. Individuals are notified of their impending removal and given an opportunity to keep their names on the books. The purge process ensures accuracy and provides a means of keeping the voter registration books as up to date as possible.

For more information, call your local county Board of Elections. You can also call the N.C. Board of Elections at (919) 733-7173. You can visit the board’s Web site at www.sboe.state.nc.us.
